Foreword

Who is man, what is he, from where did he come, and what is his destiny? Groping over the endless paths of those who have gone before, we are made aware of a cherished vision of our southland.

Deriving our inspiration from the past, we realize that we come from the crossed roads of existence. Heeding our ancestral voices and preserving the memory of a proud past, we walk with unsure feet. Yet, the goals and objectives of our ancestors become pale and insignificant when compared to those we set before us.

We are a part of a great society—and a great world—a moment in history. Our knowledge of the past enables us to understand our position in the present. Therefore,we are blazing new trails of interest.

This yearbook is a map of paths we have followed and those we have made. Proudly we present this, the 1967 Southerner in hopes that an awareness of our traditions and a knowledge of our heritage will aid us in clearing our own

Pathways.

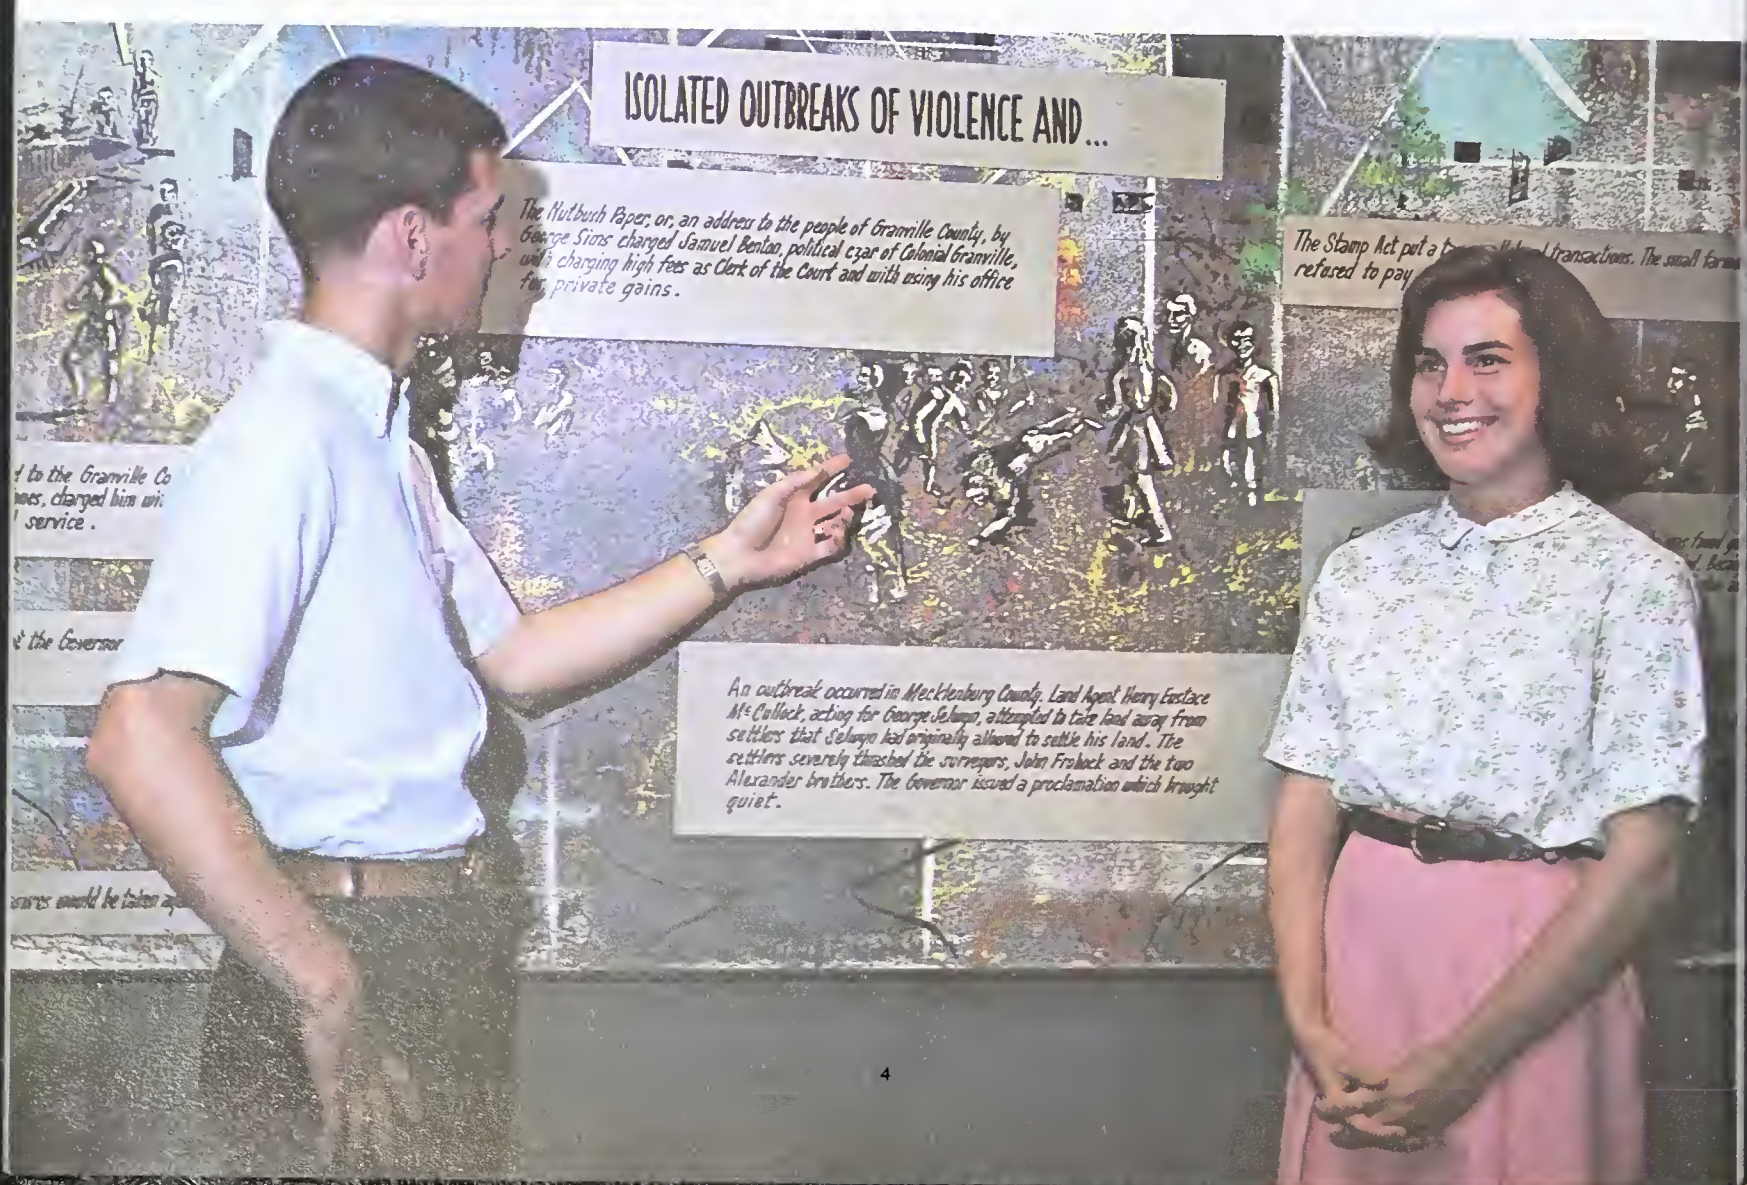
From The Distant Past . . .

Throughout the history of North Carolina, this area has played a prominent role in its progress. Among the integral parts, is our pride of the Alamance Battleground, where, some say, the American Revolution actually began. Indeed, freedom of worship was precious to our forefathers, also. Their love of God is displayed by the interior of many historical churches in our area.

"What wonders memory performs in perserving and storing up things gone by . . ."



To The Present

Our most enriching moments are those which we have spent with others. We are given the right to enjoy freedoms we so many times tend to take for granted. Past generations have given us the opportunity of challenging parts of life which we do not understand. Those who have gone before have given us inspiration and spirit of pride in ourselves, our community and our country.

"Today, our thoughts, our morals, our most fixed beliefs are consequences of the place of our birth."

Business

Pathways have been cleared by preceeding genera — tions.
From these pathways we make our own trails. Many have guided our way, but one who has contributed much with rich and endless work is . . .

The aim of the English courses at Southern High is to aid students in developing creative thinking and efficient communication. Freshmen studied the fundamental skills of grammar, while the reading of GREAT EXPECTATIONS highlighted their accomplishments in literature. Sophomores read SILAS MARNER and JULIUS CAESAR. They also concentrated on spelling, punctuation, and sentence diagraming. Juniors studied American literature and sought original topics for essays and themes. Seniors read the CANTERBURY TALES and MACBETH, while they gained practice in self-expression by composing themes and writing term papers.

English, being a required course, is presented to the students on three levels: regular, college preparatory, and accelerated. Regular English is for students who do not expect to go to college. It emphasizes grammar for practical purposes and literature for the development of reading skills.

as English skills improved.

College Preparatory English is designed for students who expect to go to college or for those who have a particular interest in English but do not plan to continue their education beyond high school. This level emphasizes the mastery of grammar skills and a detailed study of literature. Accelerated English classes are for students who are unusually talented in the field of English. Membership of the accelerated classes is based on teacher recommendation, the results of testing, and the students' previous scholastic record.

Along with the required English courses, reading improvement is taught for those students who have not reached normal reading proficiency. This course provides instruction in word recognition and perception, word analysis, development of vocabulary, and use of reading materials.

Led competently and successfully by the faculty of the English department, Southern was again able to maintain its high standards and reputation for excellence.

Social studies prepared leaders for tomorrow.

Social studies showed the sigificance of historical developıents as well as the dramatic im-act of events on the people of to-ay. The courses offered by this epartment were civics, world istory, world geography, U.S. istory, economics and sociology.

Civics gave the students an nderstanding of government and repared them for the role of itizenship. World history and orld geography provided stuents with a good background for ıcing the problems of the world.
conomics and sociology familırized students with social pro-lems and the economic aspects f our lives. U.S. History was a equired subject because all stuents need to know about their ountry and its government.

Oral reports, news articles, ooks, informal debates, and anel discussions helped the stuents in history classes.

Students pursued new ideas in fields of Math

MRS. CHRISTINE WOODY

Algebra, Business Math
Advisor - Student Council

Several changes have taken place in the courses offered in the field of mathematics this year. For the first time the concepts of modern mathematics have been introduced at Southern High School. Modern mathematics is a logical method of solving problems. It shows reasons for everything done. Only the students taking Algebra I were taught modern mathematics this year. In years to come, however, modern mathematics will work its way into all of the mathematics courses.

Since two units of mathematics are required for graduation, Southern offered two sets of mathematic courses. One set was for college preparatory students and the other was for students who did not plan to attend college.

The field of science occupied a significant place in the curriculum of Southern High School. It prepared the students for the fast-moving, modern world in which we live. One of the most important methods of teaching used in this field was experimentation. The students gained knowledge by observing and testing new ways of doing things.

Southern offered two sets of courses in the field of science. One set for college preparatory students included chemistry, physics, college preparatory biology and physical science. The other set which included regular physical science and biology was for non-college preparatory students.

MISS JEWEL McBANE

The home economics department at Southern High School offered an opportunity for girls to prepare for their future lives as homemakers. Approximately two hundred and fifty girls from all four grades took advantage of this opportunity this year.

Just by entering a home economics room, a person may see some of the accomplishments made by these students. Being greeted by tantalizing aromas, a person may see a table spread with tempting foods. At another time a person may see a fashion show as the students model their newly made garments.

After having completed this course, a student has studied many varied aspects of home economics. She has acquired skills in wardrobe and budget planning, nutrition and childcare, and home management.

Agriculture strengthened farming techniques

Freshman and sophomore agriculture students are offered either an introductory course in agricultural occupations or a course in agricultural science and mechanics. These two courses provide a basic understanding and prepare students for more advanced courses.

Each spring, rising juniors and seniors sign up for the advanced course they want to take the following school year. The courses receiving the largest number of votes are then offered. Those taught this year were construction, machinery, crop and soil technology, forestry, and horticulture. Such a wide variety of courses enabled agriculture students to learn such things as correct usage of tools, management of crops, principles of plant and soil science, and experience in farming.

With such an extensive four-year program, students are able to develop the necessary skills for comprehension and application of the agriculture course.

Commercial courses stressed accuracy

To prepare students for good positions in the business world, the commercial department at Southern offered extensive instruction. Two years of typing and shorthand were offered. These two subjects required diligent work in order for students to achieve their goals of speed and accuracy. For the purpose of gaining knowledge in business mechanics, one year of business math and two years of bookkeeping were offered. Also taught was office practice in which students obtained a better understanding of office work.

New to the curriculum of Southern was the course, office occupations. This provided students with an opportunity to gain not only a classroom background but also the experience of working part time at either the school or a business organization. This course certainly proved to be a success.

Students who were planning careers in the world of business were fortunate in having the opportunity to take such worthwhile courses.

Students learned the mechanics of the business world

The Vocational Education department at Southern consists of four divisions - introduction to vocations, distributive education, industrial cooperative training, and marketing. Each course, in a different manner, prepares students for the fast moving business world.

Introduction to vocations is a course covering the many vocational aspects of our society. It embodies the economic principles and sociological factors that underlie the student's everyday activities.

D. E. offers a student a chance to learn business relationships while in school. The classroom work is devoted to the study of developing the needed skills concerning this course.

I.C.T. is a program of study at school along with job training. Classwork includes materials which are helpful to the trainee at work and in learning how to live and get along with others.

Marketing, offered for the first time, trained students for careers in salesmanship and advertisement. In this course, students learn how to apply for a job and how to become a good salesman.

Music created more school spirit

The Southern High School band draws approval while marching in the Graham Christmas parade.

The purpose of the music department at Southern is to instill in the student a love for music and to help the student develop his talent. During the year, the Glee Club and the Band provided a variety of music for both school and community.

The Glee Club consisted of one hundred and fifty-five students. This included fifteen Southern Belles and fifteen Southern Sons who were chosen by audition. The Glee Club provided special music for P.T.A. meetings, assemblies, graduation, and the baccalaureate sermon. Also, the Glee Club gave programs for civic organizations and presented two concerts, one at Christmas and one in the spring.

The Band consisted of approximately sixty-five students. Throughout the year, the Band participated in numerous activities. Among these were the Burlington, Graham, and Mebane Christmas parades, the Elon Homecoming parade, UNC Band Day, Elon Band Day, and two concerts. The Band also played at football games and other school functions.

Physical education taught good sportsmanship

Although health and physical education is a required course at Southern, it still ranks as one of the most popular. Being extremely fortunate, Southern was able to present to students not only the required course but also an advanced one. Offered for both boys and girls, regular physical education classes met three days per week. Health, therefore, was taught the remaining two days. Physical education minus the health program was offered in the advanced course. Because the time was not as limited as the regular classes, the advanced students were able to explore in detail the history and development of many sports as well as the rules and regulations.

During the year, all classes began by several minutes of performing calisthenics. Then students were usually divided into two teams in order to play such games that were taught as volley ball, soccer, basketball, and softball.

Through the hard work and effort put forth both by the teachers and the students, a great deal was accomplished. Students learned more than just doing exercises, playing games, studying health, and practicing good sportsmanship. Most important of all, they learned the skill of getting along with others.

What! Another book gone?

At Southern High School the library is an essential part of the process of learning. It provides a large quantity of good reading materials. By the end of this year the library should have approximately ten thousand books. On the average this would be ten books per student. The library also contained subscriptions to forty-six magazines and five newspapers.

The library also provided audio-visual materials for students and teachers. These included records and filmstrips. Audio-visual machines such as record players, movie projectors, tape recorders and television sets can be found in the library.

Students may come to the library for several purposes. These are to check out books, read magazines and newspapers, and to do reference work. The knowledge gained from the use of the library provided the students with a well-rounded education.

Pat and Johnny show their class how to change a tire.

Driver's training promoted highway safety

For the first time Southern offered to students a safety education course in driver's training. Students were chosen for this class by their age and were taught during their study hall.

Driver's training required a minimum of thirty clock hours for classroom instruction. Also necessary was a minimum of six clock hours per student for behind-the-wheel instruction and practice driving, plus twelve hours of driving observation.

Students gained much from this course. They learned the parts of the car, the procedure for changing a tire, the rules and regulations for driving, and the punishments for traffic violations.

This course is not required at Southern but the completion of driver's training is necessary before one can apply for a North Carolina driver's permit or a driver's license.

Counselors guided students toward greater horizons

Mrs. Marlette encouraged prospective college students.

Two of the busiest people at Southern High this year were Mrs. Frances Marlette, part-time counselor, and Miss Eugenia Church, full-time counselor. No matter what the problem, academic or scoial, a sure source of help for a confused student was definitely the guidance department. During the year, the guidance counselors were occupied in helping seniors choose colleges for which they were best suited. They assisted many academically inclined students in applying for scholarships. For underclassmen, the counselors found themselves directing the administering of group tests. Such rewarding programs as College Day and Career Day were also among the infinite jobs the counselors possessed. Together, with the administration faculty, and parents, the guidance counselors provided the students with assistance and advice in making decisions and forming plans for the future.

At 11:00 a.m., the remaining staff members reported to the cafeteria to help with the serving which began at 11:30 a.m. From 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., the staff served a thirty-five cent meal which usually consisted of two vegetables, a choice of meat, a dessert, bread, and milk. After the last meal had been served, the entire staff worked until 2:30 p.m. in order to clean up the cafeteria and make plans for the lunch for the following day.

For the past seven years, Mrs. Sally Howerton has served as dietician and director of the S. H. S. cafeteria staff. Under her leadership, the staff has been able to operate the cafeteria in an efficient and successful manner.

Executive Committee

At the beginning of every year, one person is chosen from each homeroom to represent the members of that homeroom at the student council meetings. The representative is the link between the student council and the student body. Their job is to bring up any questions or problems before the student council and report the details of each meeting back to their homeroom.

The Executive Committee is made up of the Student Council officers, the president of each class, the head cheerleader, and the editor of the annual and newspaper.

Council

The Inter-Club Council is a new addition to Southern this year. It is composed of the president of each club, the president and vice president of each class, and the editor of the annual and newspaper.

The council was organized in order to prevent any conflicts which might arise between clubs. It set up a day for each club to meet. Any club wishing to have a "called" meeting had to go through the council so that no one would be expected to attend more than one meeting simultaneously.

The council has been a big success. Jackie Tinnin was appointed coordinator, with Iris Isley as secretary and Davis Stainback as treasurer.

Student

In the spring of 1966, Miss Pam York was chosen as president of the student body for the following school year. Pam had well qualified herself during her first three years at Southern by participating in many activities.

She was vice president of the Freshman Class and served as a junior varsity cheerleader for two years, being chief the second year. As a sophomore, she was also treasurer for the student body. While a junior, Pam was on the annual staff and served as a varsity cheerleader. Throughout all three years, she was an active member and officer of many clubs and worked on several committees.

During her senior year, Pam was president of the student body, chief cheerleader, assistant editor of the annual, senior attendant at Homecoming, and a marshal. She participated in Monogram, Pep, F.T.A., Civinette, and Beta Clubs. Pam was chosen "Best All-Around" by the senior class and first runner up in the Miss Southern Pageant.

Under Pam's leadership, the Student Council has had its most prosperous year. It sponsored a carnival which raised money for a new activity bus, organized the first Inter-Club Council, published a student handbook, bought a new flag pole, designed and constructed a new patio, improved the grounds around Southern, sponsored a freshman social, and held a reception for the alumni at Homecoming. In addition to this, several new and successful committees were formed. All of these accomplishments have resulted from the ambition, hard work, and dedication of a truly wonderful and deserving girl, who could be found doing almost anything for the good of Southern. Putting up the flag pole, cheering at ball games, sending congratulatory notes to her friends, having pajama parties, and practicing her talent for the Miss Southern Pageant are all typical of Pam. Her every day seemed packed with things that had to be done, yet she always found time to encourage an old friend or make a new one.

The Student Council President of the 1966-1967 school year has been a most remarkable one and we take this opportunity to recall the many occasions of the past year and say, "Thanks."

The National Beta Club is the only honor society at Southern High School. The Beta Club was set up to promote ideals of honesty, service, and leadership among the high school students, to reward the achievements of its members, and to encourage students to continue their education beyond high school.

To qualify for membership, a student must have a ninety average, approved conduct, commendable attitude, and creditable achievement in scholastic and extra-curricular activities. Members are chosen from the Sophomore Class at the end of each year. They must be approved by the faculty and the other members.

Approximately eighty students at Southern are members of the Beta Club. These students helped sponsor the White Christmas program which provided help for needy families in the area. Another project of the Beta Club was to provide scholarships for worthy members.

Betty Crocker Winner

MARY PICKARD

Mary Pickard, by finishing first in a written homemaking knowledge and attitude examination for senior girls December 6, became Southern High School's 1967 Homemaker of Tomorrow.

Her test earned her a beautiful silver charm from General Mills, sponsor of the Betty Crocker Search for Tomorrow, plus the opportunity to compete for state and national scholarship awards.

A state Homemaker of Tomorrow and runner-up will be selected from the winners of all schools in the state.

The Betty Crocker Homemaker of Tomorrow from this state, together with those from all other states, will join in an expense paid tour of Colonial Williamsburg, Virginia.

DAR Good Citizen

JANIE HUFFMAN

Each year, the Daughters of the American Revolution awards to a junior girl the DAR Good Citizenship Award. Janie Huffman was presented this specially designed award on Awards Day in the gymnasium of the school in the late spring of 1966. The award was based on her outstanding qualities of patriotism, leadership, dependability and citizenship displayed throughout her high school career. Upon receiving this high honor, she also became eligible to compete for the title of DAR Good Citizen of the District.

Marshals

Marshals served at P.T.A. meetings.

After the close of the first semester of their junior year, twenty members of the class of 1967 were chosen to be marshals. These students held the highest rank in their class as well as showed satisfactory conduct and citizenship. The top ranking girl and boy were designated as co-chiefs. They were Janice Kenyon and Jimmy Hawkins.

The first duties of the marshals were to serve at the baccalaureate service and other commencement exercises. During their senior year, the marshals served at P.T.A. meetings, school activities, and other social functions. Their willingness to serve and to help others made them an indispensable asset to Southern High School.

Mrs. Frances Marlette acted as advisor for the marshals.

Marshals measured material for their dresses.

Miss Southern Pageant

LEFT TO RIGHT: PAM YORK, JENNY HUFFMAN, JANIE HUFFMAN

The Miss Southern pageant, held on November 19, 1966, came to a climax when Miss Jenny Huffman was crowned by Gail Davis, Miss Southern, 1966. First runner-up was Pam York and second runner-up was Janie Huffman. The contestants first appeared in a suit attire, then performed their talent, and finally appeared in evening gowns. From the fourteen contestants, three finalists were selected. Each was asked to answer a question pertaining to some phase of school life. The judges, basing their decisions on the girls' character, activities, poise, beauty, and talent, finally chose Miss JennyHuffman to be Miss Southern, 1967.

Second Runner-Up

Miss Janie Huffman was chosen second runner-up. She stands five feet six inches tall and has green eyes and dark brown hair. For her talent she played a rendition of Norwegian Concerto by Grieg. Janie served as accompanist for the school and Glee Club, Treasurer of the French Club, Chairman of Scholastic Committee, and Advertising manager for the Inter-Club Council, Beta, and Civinettes Clubs.

After graduation Janie plans to major in music at the University of North Carolina.

Janie Huffman

First Runner-Up

Miss Pam York was chosen first runner-up. She has blonde hair and green eyes and stands five feet and five inches tall. Her talent consisted of a monologue entitled "From Tokyo to New York." Pam served as president of the student body, head cheerleader, assistant editor of the annual, and a marshal. She was also a member of the Civinettes, Monogram, F.T.A., Beta, Pep Club, and Inter-Club Council. Her future plans are to attend the University of North Carolina where she plans to major in the field of physical education or modern languages.

Pam York

Miss Southern

Miss Jenny Huffman was crowned as Miss Southern High School of 1966-67 as a climax to the Miss Southern High Pageant held at the school. She has light brown hair and blue eyes and stands five feet two inches tall. Jenny was judged in five categories-character traits, activities, poise, beauty, and talent. Her talent was a rendition of "Toccata" by Kachaturian.

Jenny, who plans to major in music at Elon College after high school graduation, was president of the Civinettes, chairman of the Social Committee, feature editor of the annual, a marshal, a majorette, and the Senior Superlative, happiest. She is also a member of the band, Beta Club, and Inter-Club Council.

Varsity Football

The Varsity "miracle" team began the season with one foremost idea - "Confederates, all the way" - thus, in each boy's mind, the 1966 squad coached by Walter Hanford, started off to give a season filled with glory and few frustrations. Life was made quite uncomfortable for opposing teams as the "Rebel Defense" showed everyone that they were the best in the conference. Seldom ever did teams plunge through our amazing line. Our backs led by Stuart and Doss dazzled everyone with their long runs and short, tough gains. This team, the team of 1966, turned wishful thinking into a reality. Never before in the history of the school had a team done so well. Moreover, the squad more than any other group ever attending Southern High, gave its student body something to be proud of and something to fight for. Besides giving the school a winning season, it taught students the real meaning of hard work and loyalty. The team finished the season with nine wins and one loss. The 1966 team became ----

All Conference

This year our football team besides posting a record of nine wins and one loss, placed five players on the All-Conference team. Our team showed true colors of the Confederacy as they broke all school records in offense and defense. The squad was led by some defensive specialists better known as the Rebel Defense. This group of eleven boys were proud of their ability to stave off opposing teams. They were ranked as being one of the top defensive squads in the state while also holding down the number one position on defense in the Mid-State 3-A Conference. Only a select group of boys were permitted to wear the Rebel insignia on their helmets. From this eleven, five made All-Conference.

Davis Stainback, who played football all four years at Southern, was a tri-captain this year. He played offensive right guard and defensive right tackle on the Rebel Defensive Squad.

Another of the tri-captains was senior Ronald Johnson. Ronald played offensive left tackle and defensive left linebacker. As a junior, Ronald received the Golden Helmet Award. This past year, he called the defensive signals.

Steve Stuart, the other tri-captain played football four years at Southern, starting out as quarterback in his freshman year. In this position, he led the County in passing his sophomore year. During his junior and senior year, Steve was moved to fullback. On the Rebel Defense, he played left corner back.

John Doss, whose name was seen frequently on the All-State Check list, played quarterback and right defensive corner back. John helped to lead Southern's team to a tie for the Mid-State 3-A Conference title.

These five "Rebels" were a real credit to our school and its athletic program. The efforts of these boys along with all the other members of the team gave the fans a glorious season.

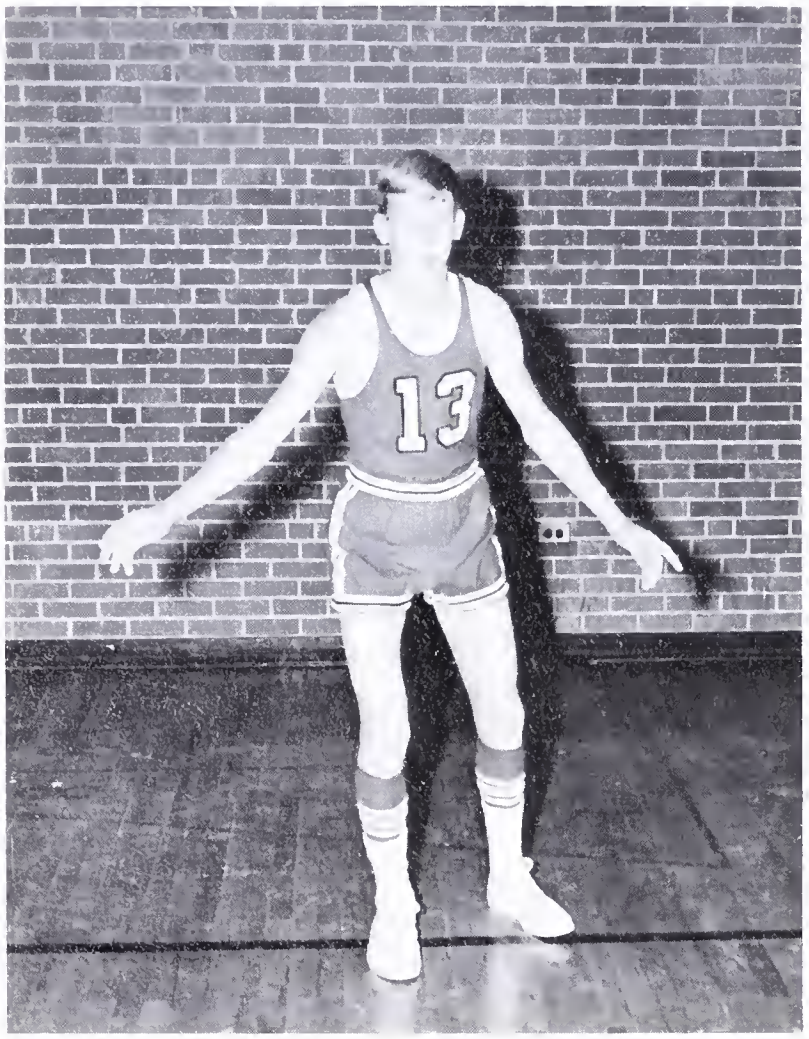
Under the leadership of head coach Roy Clayton, the Confeds opened the season with high hopes and a will to win. The team was made up largely from last year's lettermen and several juniors who showed unlimited potential. This year's cage team saw changes in the starting line-up quite frequently. Because of the talent and potential each boy showed, Coach Clayton experimented with them by starting off several different combinations of boys on a given night.

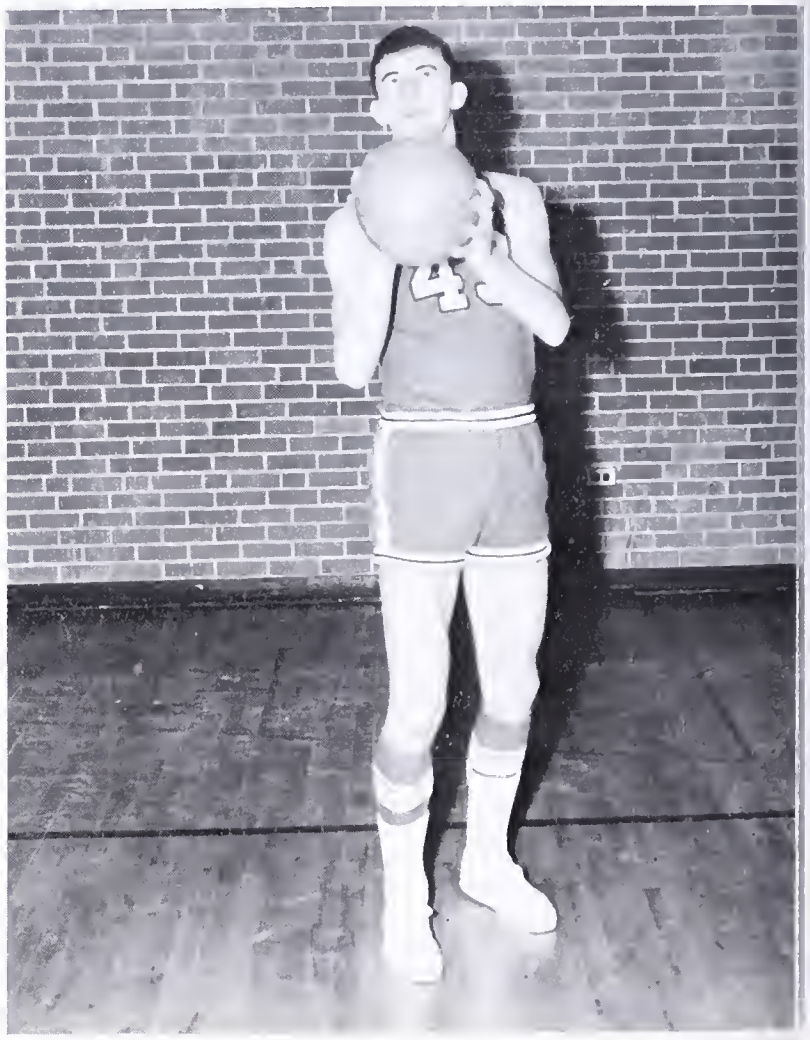
The cries of "Jump, Rick, Jump", were usually answered by 6'5" Senior Rick Barnes who held the center position. Woody Smith, 6'4", also handled the pivot position.

"We want two points, we want two," was aimed at the Confederate forwards. These boys included Senior Co-captain Steve Stuart, and juniors Brodie Andrews, Steve Franklin, and Mike White.

Danny Minor, a scrappy junior, along with



Jerry Bailey



Ricky Barnes

Confeds

Seniors Jimmy Hawkins, Jerry Bailey, and Terry Coble held down the guard positions. When the crowd yelled, "Guard 'em, guard 'em, get that ball," these boys usually did just that.

Although the Confederates seemed to have everything they needed for a victory, the season turned out to be a very tough one. Lack of support by the students caused the team not to reach the heights they were capable of attaining. However, the team always played a good, fair game, win or lose, and the few supporters who followed them were proud of the showing that they made.

These boys know that, "Victories that are easy are cheap.--Those are only worth having which come as a result of hard fighting."

Win or lose, they fought hard, and we should be proud of them for the efforts they gave.

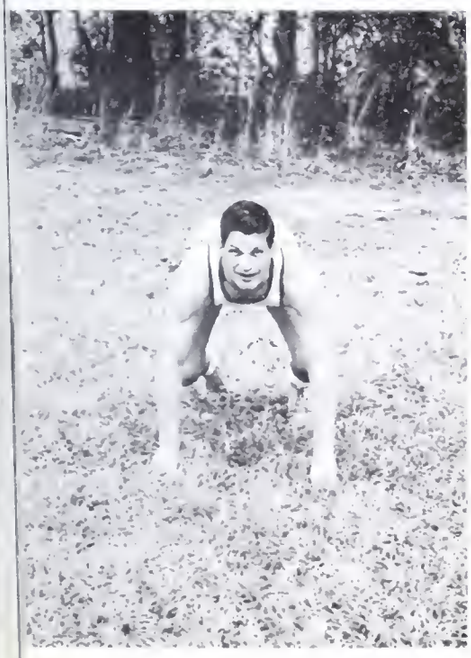
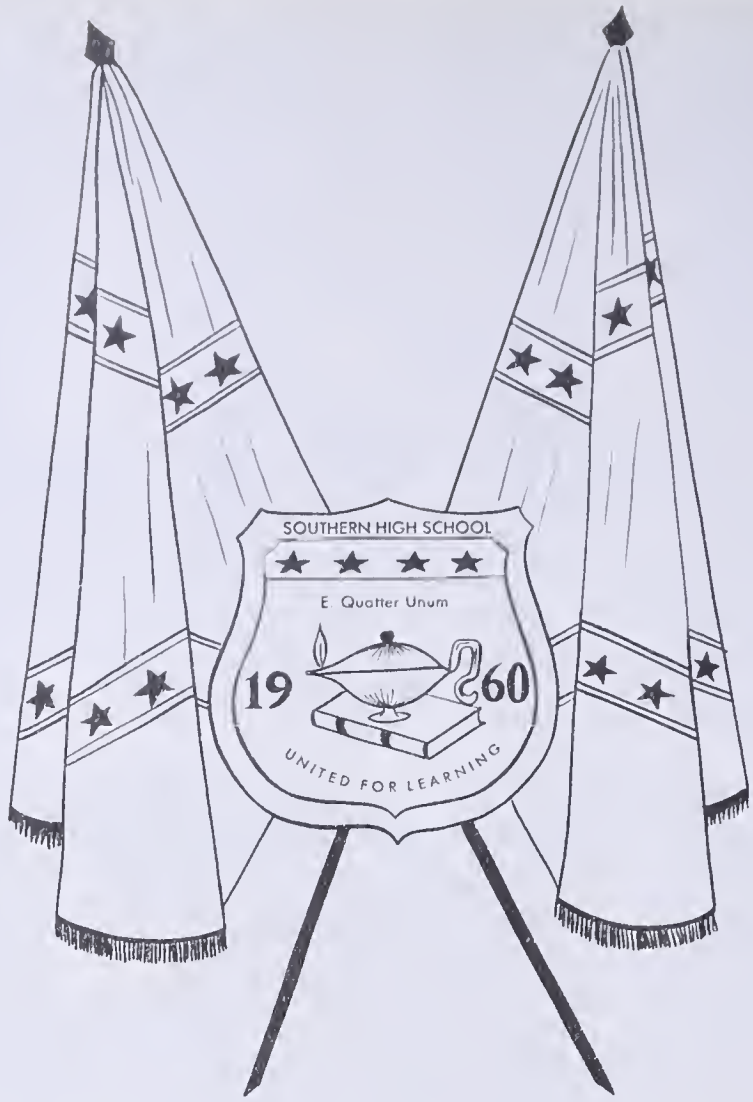
Spring Action

As the spring comes, it brings with it many sports for students here at Southern. Baseball, track, tennis, and golf close out an all ready full season of time, energy, and sweat. These games not only bring sports to a close, but also bring a close to another school year. For the seniors it means they have run their last touchdown, put the last two points in the basket, scored the last run, broken the last tape, and made the last serve. For the juniors, sophomores, and freshmen, they look forward to many other victories as they travel down the well-worn "Pathway to Glory."





Pathways of Friendship

"Pathways, the first and the last ...
A step into adulthood,
A glance into the past
Ahead is real maturity,
Behind a memory of youth."

"Ahead is real maturity, Behind, a memory of youth."

Beginning our pathway four years ago as freshmen, we now come to the end of the path. As freshmen, we realized the opportunities before us. These opportunities included the chance to make many lasting friendships and to develop our talents. Our freshman year involved electing class officers, joining clubs, taking part in sports, and just getting to know everyone. With these activities we were beginning to be united as a class. Our sophomore year brought for us more elections and our first class party, which took place in the spring of that year. Friendships were made stronger, and by working together for common goals, we achieved a better class unity. Elections, ball games, magazine sales, and class rings were all an important part of our junior year. The junior Christmas party was one of the highlights of that year, but the highlight of that year was the Junior-Senior Prom. Working and planning for long hours, we not only were able to give the seniors a wonderful prom, but we also gained valuable experiences obtained only by each individual giving of himself for the desired goal. Our last year came all too soon. As seniors, a kind of dignity was now ours alone. Our class, the Class of '67, was taking its last step on our pathway. Along the way, we took part in various activities and achieved unique goals which enabled our class to be a distinct class and not just another senior class. Our football team, composed mostly of members of our class, gave us a winning season with exciting games and a school spirit which we had never experienced before. Homecoming came and we were able to renew our class unity by working together on our scene. Preparations for college were made by taking the SAT and filling out applications. With ordering invitations, planning the Valentine's party, attending the Junior-Senior Prom, taking part in class meetings, marching in for assemblies, selecting class mascots, voting on superlatives, and experiencing a new maturity, we begin to see, with smiles and tears, our pathway's end. Commencement came with its solemnity and our ultimate goal was achieved--receiving our diplomas. Four years of our life had ended with the completion of the path. But new pathways were ahead of us, ready for us with our willingness to trod them and giving us hope for a successful and meaningful future.

Read the print . . . look at the pictures . . . laugh . . . think . . . remember . . .

This is SHS recorded to help us, the students of Southern High School, remember this year in our lives—one of many, but one of great importance. SHS is more than just the friendly chats around the fountain . . . laughter on the school bus . . . tired eyes during exams . . . or the beginning of warm and lasting relationships. Southern is an inspiration—to strive, to excel, to achieve. Here, we find something to remember but more than that, something to live for. The events that have occurred will remain with us and have an effect upon us for the rest of our lives.

As our stay at SHS draws to an end, we may look back at the many trails we have followed in order to reach our present position. Now, as we depart in search of new trails, we must take our first step down the Pathway leading to the future.

A future with Cone Mills

In this time of rapid change, we are constantly seeking imaginative, intelligent young people to help maintain our standards. Want a future with a challenge? Write Industrial Relations Department, Cone Mills Corporation, Greensboro, N. C.
